The Bulletin

and SCOTS PICTORIAL

43rd Year. No. 234 — Thursday, September 19, 1957 — Twopence

A SCOTTISH OWNED NEWSPAPER

Hailsham shakes up Tories

By GEORGE LOCHHEAD

LORD Hailsham scored an immediate "wow" at Tory H.Q. yesterday—only two hours after his appointment as new party chairman had been officially confirmed.

For 30 sparkling minutes he tried to tell the press of the world how he will approach his new job.

No one was quite sure what he meant. But everyone agreed that, in Lord Hailsham, the Tories have found the most dynamic party boss in years.

Present, also, at the "fireworks display" was Mr. Oliver Poole, the retiring chairman.

Liberal puzzle

Mr Poole is to remain as deputy chairman, partly to look after organisation, and partly — one suspects—as company-minder to Lord Hailsham's stubborn personality.

At yesterday's meeting, however, Lord Hailsham was quite responsible.

As party officials looked on with obvious amusement, he broached both on a string of "Hailshamisms"—some philosophical, most of them humorous.

Here are some of the things he said—

On party policy—"You have got to make people trust you . . . what really has to be united is a diverging world in the right combination of mutual principles into common policy action."

His first duty

On the Liberals—"I sincerely am puzzled that anybody can think that they mean anything."

On Mr Poole—"It is my intimate personal friend. I hope we will work together as right hand and left hand. He will remain as the executive arm party research—but as well I."

"It is our duty to create a

Turn to Back Page

Satchmo hits at Ike over the colour bar

NEGRO jazz trumpeter Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong said yesterday he has given up plans for a U.S. Government-sponsored trip to the Soviet Union because "The way they are treating my people in the South, the Government can go to hell."

In Grand Forks, North Dakota, for a concert, Armstrong said President Eisenhower had "no guts" and described Arkansas Governor Orval Faubus as an "uneducated plough boy."

Armstrong reaffirmed the statement he made on a "Grand Forks Herald" reporter.

No country

Shown a copy of the story that had been written on the basis of his remarks, Armstrong said, "That's fine. Don't take anything out of that story. That's just what I said and will say."

He wrote the word "solid" at the bottom of the account and affixed his signature.

He called the President "two faced" and claimed he has allowed Governor Faubus to run the Federal Government. "It's getting almost as bad a criminal case hasn't got any publicity," he complained.

"Don't get me wrong," he added, "the south is full of intelligent white people, it's the lower class people who make all the noise."

On his own

Armstrong said the use of National Guard troops to prevent school integration at Little Rock was "a politically stunt led by the greatest of all politicity hounds." He said such things "did a fine effect on relations with other countries.

"The people over there ask me

Turn to Back Page

The 2 Scots sweater girls show London!

YESTERDAY was THE DAY for Rita Nelson (19) and Kay Borthwick (24), the Hawick knitwear machinists chosen to show all their boss's sweaters in London.

Down the Cafe de Paris stairs (at Marlyn Dietrich fame) they came in pairs (but a different model at mid—you always look right in a well-made sweater.

For Rita and Kay it was a jaunt to the September 1 announcement limits of their ambition for the chair.

CROWDS BREAK THROUGH AGAIN

FOR the second night running the crowd waiting to see Princess Margaret got out of control last night outside the Northern Meeting ballroom in Inverness.

As the crowd again broke through the barrier one person collapsed and had to receive treatment.

According to eye-witnesses the breakthrough was even more alarming than Tuesday night's demonstration.

The ball opened with the traditional manoeuvre over, at which members of the Northern

Turn to Back Page

WET

N.E. and N.W. Scotland — Dull with slight rain or drizzle.

E., W., and Central—Cloudy and foggy with rain.

TO-MORROW —Fair periods.

N.A.T.O. SHIP'S OFFICER MISSING

LIEUTENANT Commander Thomas E. Iven, an executive officer on the U.S. N.A.T.O. destroyer Perris, has been reported missing.

Scottish police and immigration officials have been warned to keep a look out for him.

The Perris left the Clyde on Tuesday to take part in the N.A.T.O. exercise Strike Back.

A radio message from the destroyer said the commander had not reported back at the scheduled time of 5 a.m.—four hours before sailing time.

Commander Iven is about 30. It is believed he was wearing civilian clothes when he went ashore.

A naval spokesman at Liverpool said last night it was possible that they could be on another ship.

Because of radio silence imposed on the ships during the exercise it was not possible to make inquiries about the missing officer.

POSTBAG

Games without "laid-on"

THE picture of Prince Charles and Princess Anne at play on a sea-side bespeaks both sweetness and simplicity.

Many a young lad or lass spared on a stretch of sand over a small brother.

We had to make our own amusements in those days—and it's funny things we remember that never cost copper, mum. — Cheri de Bois, 11 Byres Street, Cockenzie.

Retired Commodore

MR. Cassels can surely see object the Church of England to accept donations about to take from members of the U.S. Church of Scotland.

Persons wishing to join the English Church are not told that they must be baptised again if they have been baptised in any other Church.

But they are only admitted to their Communion if they are confirmed or "willing to be confirmed."

Exception is, however, made where Communicant members of any other Church have no church of their own in a place where there is an English church.

They must, however, use the liturgical beliefs and not be admitted to Holy Communion.

I feel that Mr. Cassels's statement above, leaving out the baptised man, by association, for it is not true.—A. C. B. Holmes, The Hermitage, Chesters, Wooler.

U.S. sailors could have had hospitality

WHAT a pity the churches missed their opportunity with American invasion.

Let us hope to see the next one and the boys head not into unwelcoming home.

The organisations are there — women and girls' guilds, W.V.S., and W.R.I.

Everyone would have been glad to do their bit.

Our churches have nice halls and there are community centres.

Teas and games were all that would have been required.

And home hospitality is also a Christian duty and privilege.—H. C. Russell, The Cottage, Bryneal, Holmesfield.

(THE CLERGY+ LOVED).

Picture Variety

I MUST thank you for the splendid photographs in "The Bulletin."

I show your paper daily to my Saturday friends and they give unstinted praise for the splendid variety.—Mrs. T. Watkins, 113 Bonnar Street, Hillfield, Sunderland.

Senior citizens

I would suggest that a better name than old-age pensioners would be "Senior Citizens," with the motto of the town in Swiss, such as "Glasgow's Senior Citizens."—S. W., Aycliffe.

Getting it off my chest

WHILE in hospital, flowers had been sent to my ward, not for me, personally, but to brighten the surroundings generally.

This the ward sister did not quite appreciate, but placed them on a table which stood by my bed.

I asked for their removal, but this she was most reluctant to do, until I pointed out that, viewed when entering the ward, they seemed to rest on my chest.

"Don't you think," I said, "you're a little premature in placing flowers on my chest?"

They did it!—E. Bowden, 1 Laurel Place, Glasgow.

SKILL IS NOT ENOUGH

TRAVELLING in a double-decker bus along a busy thoroughfare I have been impressed by the skill with which the driver can insinuate his bus between a shambling tramcar and a crowded pavement.

Is it a tribute to the driver, and to the mechanical perfection of his vehicle, that wholesale tragedy is averted, but I cannot help but think that to me other departments of human activity would seek a job be tabulated.

The Government, which insists on stringent safety precautions in the factory, should be as zealous in preventing factory roads so that we may be as safe on the road as in the factory. — Peter J. Cassidy, 40 Baldoon Island, by Girvan.

RUBBER STAMP COUNCILLORS

CONGRATULATIONS on your leader "Getting Rid of the Party Hacks."

As a member of a small burgh local authority I have protested for the past five years that we councillors have become as yes or ready-to-go M. "rubber stamps."

The 1929 Act started the avalanche of the ebbing of powers, and the 1947 Local Government (Scotland) Act and The Electricity and Telephone Acts have all contributed to the decline.

The cause of local government is undoubtedly centralisation, and things have come to a pretty bad pass when the Secretary of State for Scotland, who is the authority for every roads, replies to a request from my town council that we, the burgh of Lauder, be appointing agents for the county council to maintain the roads and pavements running through our area, which is provided for in the Act.

His reply was that, although he is the authority, he has no power to intervene as this was a matter between the county and ourselves.

I must add is that the only area not for the repeal or amendment of said Acts. — T. Spencer (Sailor), 113 Main Street, Largs.

Turning to Liberals

YOUR leader writer's comments on the losses of the Liberal Party are perhaps a little superficial.

Seventy-odd or more lesser disappointments Liberals may be forgiven some modest satisfaction at "their continued success in by-elections."

Informed observers believe that there is more significance in recent results than you suggest.

Many thousands, perhaps millions, of people are beginning to reject the stark choice between Monopoly Capitalism of the Conservatives and the State Socialism of the Labour Party, and are realising that in fact this is not the only choice.

They are therefore turning to the Liberal Party.—H. C. Clarke, 7 Beaconsfield Avenue, Glasgow, E.3.

Giving away flowers

I have been especially interested in the letters regarding the giving away of flowers.

Too little is known of the excellent work done by the W.V.S. in this connection. Some years ago I acted there, when delivering "meals-on-wheels" to invalids, they would be willing to distribute posies of flowers.

Owing to their heavy co-operation, and that of many friends, it has been possible to distribute these posies to different districts in Glasgow.

I would welcome offers of flowers from all who are fortunate to have gardens as I am anxious to extend that plan to wherever meals-on-wheels operate.—(Miss) Ida K. Alexander, The Cottage, Lughorna, Bonnybridge.

"A MAN who has been getting a bit fussy about his health for some time, he went to see Harry Fleet's wife, on the eve of the show.

"I mean to say, maybe you're drinking on the right lines," said Dorothy Lynn when he came out.

"Right lines! I do not understand lines" said Mademoiselle.

Moreover Dear Pony who did, told her—"He is taking a prescribed drink."

"All lines are parallel," Fonty said then, when you come to think about it, you often see them."

"Monsieur Dear Pony," Tony said hysterically, "you mentioned you wanted to a doctor. He would pay to see you."

"What, you dark in the eye Jay?" asked the French girl. Obviously, although she wore a good accent, she hadn't a clue!

"Why, don't you know what parallel are?" gasped Tony.

Mademoiselle nodded and, glancing at her watch, declared—"Oh, yes. I'm wearing them."

(To be continued)

Gin can be prescribed under N.H.S.

GIN can be prescribed under the National Health Service in certain circumstances. It makes a patient feel better, a Ministry appeal board has decided.

The board refused an appeal by a doctor against Ministry of Health refusals who said that gin was just a drug which they were bound to provide.

The doctor prescribed gin to make up a mixture of camphor and benzoin for a patient suffering from an inoperable cancer.

The board said they were satisfied that gin produced a sense of well-being which would act in giving her relief which.

"We think it is the function of a doctor to have regard to the mental state of his patient as it is like that."

Cross-Channel boat missing

A small rowing boat accompanying a cross-channel swimmer has not been seen since it left Cap Gris Nez for England yesterday, say reports in Rotterdam.

Mademoiselle Marcelle Vaz Sasse Gerlard is all sleeping in the sea, waiting for a look-out to be kept for the missing craft.

ODOUR BAFFLES THE OFFICIALS

SIX tenants in houses at 102-112 Dalziels Crescent, Fergusmead, Motherwell, have complained to officials about an obnoxious smell which occurs after showers of rain.

Some painters that the smell makes them dizzy and has affected their health and the health of their children.

Mr Thomas Johnston, chief sanitary inspector; Mr Clark Fyfe, director of housing, and Dr Forgan's Medical Officer of Health, Dr William Young, have done everything possible to examine the position but so far all efforts have failed.

Part of the decking material under the flooring has been taken to Edinburgh for examination in an attempt to trace the source.

Children unwell

Stagnant water and sewers have also been tested.

Mr George Scholes, 104 Dalziels Crescent, who has three children, said, "Since entering my new house I have always felt drowsy. I have received injections to see if that would help."

Mrs Scholes added, "My children are similarly affected with drowsiness. They have been unwell since we moved."

Mrs Robert Wardrope, 110 Dalziels Crescent, described it as a musty smell. "It has even affected my parents and is generally troublesome to other showers of rain."

Arrest wages move dropped

Brandon, County Council have withdrawn arrestment of wages notices issued in respect of four Kirkcaldy miners and two colliery deputies.

Decrees against them had already been made for recovery of rent arrears in Dundee Small Debt Court.

The withdrawal followed the threat of strike action by Kirkcaldy miners on Tuesday, and a meeting between Mr James Templeton, the miners' delegate and county councillors, with members of the county housing committee yesterday.

CINEMA TO SHUT

The Odeon Cinema, Ebert, Hampshire, belonging to the Rank Organisation and the only picture house in the town, is to close down on October 22.

Queen Mother stops to chat in the street

THE Queen Mother's remarkable memory for faces was demonstrated when, accompanied by Prince Charles and Princess Anne, she paid a visit to Ballater yesterday.

They had spent some time in a toy shop, where the children had made purchases, and were walking along the street to a jeweller's when the Queen Mother spotted a woman in the crowd.

She was Mrs E. G. W. Mitchell, who is on holiday from Rhodesia with her husband.

To Mrs Mitchell's surprise and delight the Queen Mother stopped and spoke, recalling having met her during her African tour.

Mrs Mitchell and her husband, who is chief of the Caledonian Society, were presented to the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret at Dorset, Southern Rhodesia, in 1953.

1400 X-RAYS IN DAY

Over 1400 people were X-rayed in Lanarkshire yesterday, bringing the total since the county's mass radiography campaign began on September 1 to 34,991.

You Look Wonderful

because you feel wonderful, when you have had your hair styled at

Morwoch's New Salons

Entirely modernised and re-decorated. Under new direction.

19 Royal Exchange Sq

Quick a boy's appetite

WILTS Rice Pudding

he's a rice pudding man for good. And a good thing too!

With is just full of the things that go to make a small boy love a hearty lad. Sugar for energy, full-cream milk for body building and rice for nourishment—they're all here, ready-cooked and as delicious as any pudding that's spent the morning in the oven.

He's licking his lips for

WILTS RICE PUDDING

Ready-cooked—add ready to serve

Eat it cold, just as it comes (especially good cock fruit!). Warm it up for an instant. Or bake it in a dish for 15 minutes—with a sprinkling of cinnamon. Any way you serve it the children love it!

'Flu victim dies in girl's arms

A man due to be married on Saturday has died in his fiancée's arms. Doctors told his family that he had been in with influenza for several days.

He was Frank Harris (28), bus driver, Cranshall Lane, Wednesbury, Staffordshire. An inquest will probably be held.

He died in the arms of his fiancée, Hazel Fletcher (19), at her home in Wellington Road, Tipton.

Mr Harris returned to work last week although not fully recovered from a three-week illness.

'Flu was also blamed yesterday for the deaths of three children. Two of them, girls aged 9 and 10, died in a Pontefract (Yorkshire) hospital. The third, a nine-year-old girl, died at Merthyr Tydfil, Glamorganshire, from bronchial pneumonia caused by 'flu.

Probably Asian

Influenza which is prevalent in many Glasgow schools and factories is Asian 'flu, Dr A. S. Miller, Glasgow's deputy Medical Officer of Health, Dr A. S. Miller, said yesterday.

"It is not possible to say definitely without laboratory tests," said Dr Miller. "But its mild character suggests that it might be Asian 'flu."

There is no need for mothers to worry unduly about their children because, according to Dr Miller, the 'flu has not reached epidemic proportions, and there is a chance that it will not reach that stage.

SHAWCROSS'S BID TO ENTER GHANA FAILS

■ Mr Christopher Shawcross returned to Lagos after being refused entry into Ghana yesterday. On his right is Ghana barrister Kofi Lartey, who accepted him as Defending Mr Ian Colvin.

Back to Lagos he flies

MR Christopher Shawcross's bid yesterday to re-enter Ghana, from which he was banned last Sunday was unsuccessful.

He told reporters at Accra airport that he re-entry had been prohibited. There he flew back to Lagos, Nigeria.

Mr Shawcross said his entry had been prohibited under a section of the Ghana immigration restriction ordinance which covers "the prevention of undesirables from entering" the country.

"Don't go back"

The Q.C. was seeing re-entry to represent Mr Ian Colvin of the "Daily Telegraph," and two Reuters leaders deported from Ghana last month.

The reporter has since been summoned to appear in the Accra Divisional Court tomorrow to answer charges that he wrote articles for his newspaper "with intent to excite popular prejudice" against Government officials.

Mr Colvin is in Lagos and has been told by his newspaper not to return to Ghana unless Mr Shawcross is allowed back in to report on him.

Mr Kojo Edusei, Ghana's Interior Minister, ordered that Mr Shawcross's entry permit should not be renewed "in order to maintain peace and stability in the country."

Before the order, Mr Shawcross successfully submitted to the Accra Divisional Court that contempt charges against Mr Colvin had been brought in the wrong court. Mr Colvin was awarded 250 guineas costs.

Woman weeps in the dock

Mrs Annie Kerr (48) buried her face in her hands and sobbed in Glasgow Central Police Court yesterday when she appeared on a charge of assault, two charges of breach of the peace, and another of vandalism.

Her appearance in court followed an alleged stabbing incident in Cumbernauld Road, Glasgow, on Tuesday night when 31-year-old Jessie Carr, 16 Tarscastle Street, was treated on the hand. Kerr's injury had to be stitched at the Royal Infirmary.

Mrs Kerr was remanded to the Sheriff Court and committed to prison for four days for further inquiry.

AIRPORT IMPROVEMENT

Work has started on the enlargement and strengthening of the main runway at Prestwick Airport.

Poles escape to Germany

Two Polish seamen, who claimed to have hidden in the lifeboat of a Polish fishing cutter for four days, asked the West German authorities in Kiel for political asylum yesterday.

The two, a 24-year-old medical student and a 21-year-old seaman actor, said they were on board the fishing cutter at Gdingen and escaped on land as it passed the Kiel Canal.

Star plans TV holiday

Film actor Charles Laughton flew into London Airport yesterday for a month's holiday and announced—"I feel I need one badly after working straight for two and a half years."

But during the holiday he plans to appear on TV twice. In TV programmes he will read from the Bible, Shakespeare, and as we, he said.

Asked what his wife, Elsa Lanchester, he said—"She is in America rehearsing for her new play, 'The Salt Touch.' We have not much time's hole now we have been married for so many years."

THE BULLETIN PAGE 5
Thursday, September 19, 1957

U.N. WILL DEBATE CYPRUS

THE U.N. General Assembly's Steering Committee voted yesterday to recommend that "The Cyprus question" be placed on the Assembly's agenda for debate during the present session.

The committee voted 12-0 with five abstentions after hearing Greek allegations of British atrocities and a Soviet claim that the island is "an increased concentration camp."

Greek proposal

Britain, Czechoslovakia, France and Russia abstained from voting.

The Greek Foreign Secretary, Mr Selwyn Lloyd, objected to the phrasing of the original Greek proposal which asked the Assembly to discuss the violation of human rights and atrocities by the British colonial administration against the Cypriots.

But he later declared that he would not oppose its inclusion if the agenda item substituted "The Cyprus question"—proposed by Norway was accepted.

COPLAND & LYE, LTD., BATCHELORS STREET, GLASGOW, C.2

Broques for Scottish moors

TED: Tan/beige rep-rain calf shoe "Dainite" rubber sole. Price 95/-

COUNTY BROGUE: Tan calf brogue in shoe. Flu Seal Leather sole. Price 95/-

IN THE SHOE DEPARTMENT FIRST FLOOR

DAPPLE PONY BOOTEE: Multi colour suede and fur boot with elastic gusset. Price £6.15/-

GLENEST: Tan nigger leather calf slip-on shoe. "Dainite" rubber sole. Price 95/-

COUNTY BAR: Tan calf buckle bar. Rough-tan sole. Leather heel. Price 95/-

AT McDonalds LTD.

21 BUCHANAN STREET, GLASGOW, C.1. Cen. 3870

Bulletin
Thursday, September 19, 1957

Industry and the Universities

Are our universities producing the right kind of material for British industry? The latest PEP survey would seem to question it and, at a time when industry is crying out for suitable graduates, it's important that attention should be paid to its needs.

To say that an Oxford or Cambridge degree—and not necessarily a good one—plus a sense of humour and the ability to mix well are essential qualifications for a bright future in industry would be an over-simplification. But it seems that a man from a residential university—and that excludes most of our universities—has the best chance of success.

Provincial universities, with a tradition of digs and living at home, are dismissed by less firm as "impetus." But Britain needs graduates, and Oxford and Cambridge alone cannot possibly meet that need. Nor would it be fair to blame the "red brick" universities for their shortcomings. They are the victims of circumstances. The number of students to-day compared with pre-war is up by two-thirds....There is a shortage of buildings, classes are too large, and equipment is insufficient.

Making the best of it

But there is no doubt that some of our universities have become too big; factories, in short, for turning out graduates. And, as the PEP survey shows, more than look learning is needed to equip a man for an industrial career.

So long as a student is just one of a crowd, often unidentifiable as an individual by his teachers, unable even to be a member of his union because the union just isn't big enough, then he's going to be at a disadvantage compared with the resident student. But he'll have a degree, which he wouldn't have had if the "red brick" universities hadn't been willing to make the best of a difficult job. Given the facilities, they could develop his personality as well.

PERTINENT and OTHERWISE

The Saltoun in miniature. . . but "The Winner."

THE days of the high-prestige winner voted on Our Scottish Home Service are obviously in the past. We ought have guessed as much from the trends down south in programme planning, but now the autumn and winter plans for Scotland have been announced, and there's nothing of the "Heritage" or "Annals of Scotland" sort. Nothing to remain us a winter of culture . . . or depending on how you look at it, of discontent!

Quite a barrage of light entertainment is promised as much of it coming at that late hour when the day's work is done and relaxation is paramount. Immediately after the famous News comes News. There'll be Scottish dance music, a series called "Duet," starring singers Brian Donahue and Elaine Penn — that'll be followed by another, Kenneth McKellar series "Round Magazine" will continue, as will "It Seems Absurd," "The Chuck of Geraldine," and "Down" — new to be produced by W. Gordon Smith. Another Steve Gardner series by Eddie Boyd, this one called "The Rumble Stop," will star Teddy Johnson and Pearl Carr. Then —normally the scariest approach to culture as yet devised for our winter nights—comes a new series, "Star Prospect." In the Lionel Bart/Joe Meek/Jack Fallon era of soaring programme standards, STV will chair a discussion and location programme which aims to get at the logic, not merely to challenge opinions.

The winner

WE just received a picture of the winner of the most elegant fashions which was built by Captain Andrew Thomson, Edinburgh (also of Spyglawend, Tweed, Berwick) and which won for him the championship cup and a silver medal in its section at the Model Engineers' Exhibition at the International Hall, Westminster.

The model is 22 inches over-all length—scale 1in. to 24ft.—and took two and a half years spare time to complete. Decks and lifeboats are planked; there are 500 blocks, all workable, and 300 deadeyes; the sails are rigged and are complete with real canvas and stitches, and the yards can be swung or hoisted.

"Remembered by me . . ."

THOUGH there was nothing in the way of organised hospitality for the Americans who landed on the West of Scotland as the week-end, some of the sailors evidently went away with good opinions of our hospitality. Because "The Bulletin" was in operation on the subject, on the last page and in this column, I have been sent a copy of the letter received yesterday from a group of grateful Americans.

It is addressed to the officers of the S.S.A.D. Perth, including the U.S. Navy, to the crew of Glasgow Corporation Harbours Launch, Mission of the United States U.S.S. Essex aircraft carrier, desire to thank most greatly Captain Duncan Peckford, of Tobruk, Thomas Castle and Baltimore Forces, for his most gracious hospitality and very kindly at Baltimore which will be long remembered and often recalled by us, the undersigned and many others, including our sisters.—Commander R. E. Peacock, Commander R. E. Peacock.

A 'text' for to-day

Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another.

(Romans xiv, 19.)

They like it frank

QUITE a large number of the students at the Glasgow "Tech" will be going to find themselves studying not Technology but farming the next year. The reason nomination is that farmers are somewhat worse pinched than of the biggest problems which the new technologists have to cope with at Colchester is the provision of a suitable water supply.

Dr Sir T. H. Benson, director and secretary of the unit, told me: "Recent dry periods yesterday the last three years (adds) Water provision a background consumption. But if the work of the technical assistant succeeds the Colne Water may soon make a more definite contribution than background music to the area.

Under the leadership of Professor Fraser the "Tech" students will survey the land of the area with a view to building reservoirs and other systems to hold the river can provide a constant source of fresh flowing water. "The animals, it seems, don't all take kindly to the chemical dyes in our water.

Grease amenities, it's said, are needed to show the public at Calderpark. And perhaps a happy event next April will provide this, for by then the Glasgow Zoo's panda, the great owners of 8 infernal, 8 school in, offspring of a game and 2 more, and the zebra that which one born on the zoo two years ago is now a handsome stallion and is running with a Shetland pony mare.

Hardly unusual

MAYBE an Scots shouldn't show so much about our business. A friend [illegible] back from a rather wet holiday on South Uist tells me that he was just swapping with his landlord one evening for a bit more by when he walked a new lodger. Mr W. H. Weller, a retired dentist from Herefordshire, who comes to Scotland nearly every summer for real holidays.

Mr Weller was wearing a light coat against the heavy rain, and below that a shirt, pants and a thin jacket. So joint of the coat he was wearing, and the shirt, and simply sat down before the fire to dry himself off. A hot-water bottle? No wonder's dream of it. And he set off the next morning quite a gale.

BYSTANDER

LAUGHLINE

"Well—that certainly finishes our theory about them having a more advanced culture than us."

E. G. Hutton's IN THE CORNER

A MATTER OF KNACK

MR Harry Cope, a motorist from Derbyshire, is a sadly disappointed man. It appears that—for the last three years, as well as being a pitman, Mr Cope has been the champion nail-bender of Britain. But now, apparently, there is little pleasure left for him in that splendid achievement, because he is having the greatest difficulty in finding anyone to challenge him for his title. This must indeed be a frustrating thing for any champ.

And frankly, though I am most sympathetic, I can't see any way in which I can help him. Nail-bending simply isn't a thing of mine—at least not the way he does it. Give me a hammer and a piece of wood and I'll bend any nail in the business till it resembles a question-mark, but this powerful finger stuff just isn't for me.

SOFT SAWS

All pockets are made soft from now on, and the best thing I can do with a tenderness book is look it up, not that it up. I know my limitations, and rub-shells are just about them. Even when I meet Miss Joyce Rhodes, the girl who has been nearly and biceps, I no longer try to straighten out the tenpence and the hooks on dustcovers.

When she handed me the 9-pound bit of metal with, I merely take it, say a little, and hand it back sweetly and politely.

Mind you, there was a time when I was not so clever. That was back in the days when I was publicly good tenderfoot, and believed such things as that we'd be paid our post-war pension after the war and that there's just a knack to bending up a pinch book. I can clearly remember the man who sold me that one—very very fellow he was, too, only I couldn't think why he had his hands bandaged.

Of course, I figured it out quite soon. Indeed, I figured out quite a lot while my own cuts and gazing wounds were being dressed and bound. One thing was that if there was a knack, he didn't know it. Another was that even if he knew it, he hadn't told me properly.

Another was that huge, heavy saucer-belly was rolled down a curved incline so that they went soaring into the air. The large gentleman then caught them on the back of his neck without any ill-effects—except to the person-lady who looked a little horrified. A wonderful act—there wasn't an injured spine in the theatre.

I went to see the management afterwards, and as we talked, he gently swapped an iron bar around his neck—well, you've got to give the—two members, I suppose. But he, too, assured me that the whole thing was indeed simply a matter of learning the knack. I looked sceptical. "Indeed so," he nodded, "all knack." Then he added, thoughtfully swapping a steel chain, "Also helps to be born large." He shook down and then had some trouble untying the knot—teeth.

But I sincerely hope that Mr Cope finds a challenger soon. If you're interested he reckons that snapping a 6-in. nail is over seconds is good average going. But that, I imagine, can be bettered. After you've learned the knack.

eyes if he'd told me right. I couldn't do it. The head was that he didn't pose such a nice fellow after all.

There used to be a great talking theatre ship—Gerson, I think—who loved the bulls doing a strong-man act, and the climax of his show came when

Mr POTTER
By Tormont

SOMETHING TO HEAR — by MAURICE LINDSAY

"The Gondoliers" with an all-star cast

A Gilbert and Sullivan opera sung by an all-star cast! For years I've looked forward to the day when copyright restrictions would make this possible.

The day has been hastened by, I suppose, recording without the spoken dialogue.

Anyway, here's "The Gondoliers" on your H.M.V. disc (ALP 1560) with Evans, Young, Sharrocks, Lewis, and Cameron among the men, and—such a state of things, indeed, I forget to put the ladies first—Sinclair, Cross, Stevenson and Thomas on the other side. Sir Malcolm Sargent conducts the Pro Arte Orchestra and the Glyndebourne chorus.

OR LAUGHTER

The sound, as you'd expect, is musically delightful. But . . . I believe it, or not, the lyrical sparkle isn't there, and in its place are distorting shades of the British Dramatic Tradition! Still, if it's generally the music you're after, this is your buy.

If it's laughter you're after, then try "Some Gemmill in Scotland Added" (Philips BBL 7474). "Gemmill," by Russell-Wood, isn't perhaps as funny as "The Blue."

But "Backwards with the Folk Song" had us fretting with nervous mirth, while "How to Speak Your Register" nearly brought on convulsions!

Records on disc, even of musical singing, seem to be growing more popular, but some refreshing is needed in official quarters.

On Parlo LXT 5126, "An Evening at the Lyric Opera" of Chicago," Tebaldi, Simionato, and Bergonzi, sing as well as Mario Lanza and Del Monaco, "Eugene Onegin" (Tebaldi's Lensi Scene alone makes this disc worth while), "Andrea Chenier, and "Bohemian" among others. But we are irritated with inconsistent bursts of applause.

WHILE PLAYING

Beyond offering us to register with surprise the fact that evening, second Concertgebow are not alone, bowing into an improving version after an era, these performers are peculiarly . . .

That they are to these editions is shown by another "pinnacle" recording, "Horowitz in Recital" (RCA RB 16019).

Here is considerable virile playing of a programme which ranges from a Scarlatti Sonata to Scriabin's "Black and Scriptus," and is more likely to appeal to Horowitz fans than to discriminating music-lovers.

For them, however, there's a splendid stereo Brahms recital by the Vienna of most of the late pianist, issued on Decca, LXT 5100.

Cycle king began with £25 capital

THE owner of the Raleigh and Crane, Britain's "cycle king," who died at Cannes yesterday, was an outstanding example of a small man's rise to the heights in business.

Aided by his brother and with a capital of £25 he began to make bicycles in Birmingham in 1910, when he was 23.

The brothers worked seven days a day. In the first week they made 25 bicycles.

Million a year

By 1937 they were selling 1,000,000 bicycles a year. The partnership ended in 1946 when Harry died, leaving a fortune of £37,000.

In 1946 Sir Edward sold the Raleigh firm to the Tube Investments Group for £3,250,000.

Sir Edward had lived in Jersey since 1946, but spent a good deal of time cruising in his 127-ton yacht Natalie. He owned a widow and two daughters.

Twins made him steal

After his wife had twins from Scott, 28-year-old eye inspector, T. Macquarie, Edinburgh, was an "over-stable" for months.

He stole a £12 typewriter and said it for £10, Edinburgh Sheriff Court was told yesterday.

Scott's agent said he was "a good shop-trotter to sell—a keeper for his wife." The house he was buying cost him £3 10s a week out of his £11 wage.

The Sheriff fined him £15.

A day with the fishing fleet

Four members of the party of Norwegian factory experts at present visiting Scotland were to see work the Lowestoft fishing fleet in the Moray Firth yesterday.

The party have engagements in Aberdeen to-day.

Colonel Hatem makes her a promise . . .

MRS Edna Twinborn, of Cowgate, Northumberland, wife of Mr James Twinborn who is serving a two-year jail sentence in Cairo, said in London yesterday that Colonel Abdel Hatem, the Egyptian propaganda chief, had promised her that if she made an appeal for world aid it was delivered in the proper quarters.

Mrs Twinborn had a 10-minute talk with Colonel Hatem, who is in London as leader of the Egyptian delegation to the Inter-Parliamentary Union conference. She said he received her with "very great kindness," and agreed to do all in his power to try to arrange for her to speak with her husband on the telephone.

"He has also promised to take back our protest I like to send to my husband. I am extremely grateful to Colonel Hatem for his kindness," said Mrs Twinborn.

She is pictured here with Captain T. F. Peart, Labour M.P. for Workington, who arranged the meeting.

MOTHER LEFT BOYS ALONE 12 HOURS

THREE boys—aged 11, three, and one—were left alone in their home for 12 hours when their mother went to Glasgow, Kirkcaldy Sheriff Court was told yesterday.

Before the Court was Mrs Margaret Fenwick, 24 West Bonnyton Street, Kirkcaldy.

She admitted neglecting the children on July 26. Sentence was deferred for six months.

One meal

The Fiscal said that when an N.S.S.P.C.C. inspector called at the house he found two slices of bread and half a pound of margarine. The eldest boy had made one meal consisting of soup from a tin and fried potatoes.

He made three calls before Mrs Fenwick arrived home at 9.30 p.m. accompanied by her father, a married sister, two children, and another woman.

Mrs Fenwick, who carried the one-year-old boy and held the three-year-old boy as she stood in the dock, said she went to Glasgow to collect her 81-year-old father. She was tired and unable to look after herself.

Drunk driver fined £35

A Musselburgh lorry driver who knocked down a lamp standard in Middle Main Road, Edinburgh, and fined a total of £35 and banned from driving for a year at Edinburgh Sheriff Court yesterday.

Charles Rodger (39), 218 North High Street, admitted charges of drunk driving and careless driving.

Take one soldering iron and . . .

NOW MAKE YOUR OWN TELEVISION

WOMEN who know how to use a soldering iron can now make their own TV sets—and many of them are doing so.

That is the claim of an exhibitor at the "do-it-yourself" exhibition which opens in London to-day.

"A woman can make that with ease," said engineer Robert Hirst, pointing to an attractive 17-inch receiver.

The set can be made from a hard-up-master kit of spare time work, he added, and it costs £45.

Here are some of the other do-it-yourself ideas on view at yesterday's previews:

Plastic plastic with tiles which are self-adhesive and become rigid when fixed. They will not crack, shrink or buckle.

An aeroplane

A "make-it-yourself" aeroplane that costs only £450 and which is being built by more than 120 groups of flying enthusiasts, including one headed by a Rutherglen doctor.

A five-piece bedroom suite which can be made for £12 10s complete with a shop price of "at least" £210.

Do-it-yourself lovemaking have their own stand at the exhibition.

One of them has invented a special television lamp. What's so special? When you are viewing it is sometimes difficult to hear the ring of the door bell. This lamp lights up when you have a caller.

Lotus
SHOES
REGINA 84/-
An attractive ruffled buckle gives an added hint of fashion to this black suede court.
CAMBRIAN 69/11
Suede coloured suit court with piping in black, brown and patterned.
at Bairds
45 GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, C.1

she's the woman she wants to be in KAYSER Feature Nylons

She knows how much Kayser nylons do for her poise and her appearance . . . she knows she can buy them in all the latest fashion colours, and in 3 leg lengths . . .

and she knows that the unique special features of Kayser nylons make them unrivalled for value, wear and luxury.

Chevron Life — a very close to seamless ranges of nylons. Their twin threads make them miracle-wearing. These everlastingly lovely nylons can be bought in single pairs but two pairs are guaranteed for up to six days. From 9/11 per pair.

SUPER-BABY: micro-fine knee-to-ankle below the welt "glove" finish with every movement. 15 denier, 30 gauge for sheer beauty, three-thread, Ladder-Stop Toe. Three leg lengths, 9/11.

30 denier, 51 gauge, with Run-Stop, Fan-Ash Top . . . all in one stocking. Three leg lengths to choose from, 8/11.

LACELINE: the lace stocking with a seam, no matter how you view it, 8/11. 15 denier, 9/11.

FASHION COLOURS: See the exciting new Autumn colours — Velvet Dusk and Mink — with the other eight flattering Kayser shades.

STAY-PUT HEEL: All make luxurious fit perfect. Ensures no unsightly seams.

KAYSER FEATURE NYLONS
MAKE YOU THE WOMAN YOU WANT TO BE

Investor's Bulletin

Recovery in oil prices

Interest was attracted yesterday on most markets, with the good start in oil shares given new at the first session.

Despite the quiet at this "breather" Ultimate showed up 3d by late trading.

Eve's Comedy	47/-	+7d
Int'l War Loan	45/-	+1/-
British Aluminium	55/-	+1/-
Calico Printers	39/6	+1/-
Vickers	87/6	+2/6
Turner and Newall	66/-	+1/-
Unilever	96/-	+1/-
Anglo-Iranian Oil	41/-	+1/-
British Petroleum	139/-	+2/6
Burmah Oil	81/3d	+1/6d
Shell	181/6d	+2/-
Ultimate	80/-	+1/-

WORKERS JOIN SNATCH CHASE

HOMEGOING workmen jumped on a man during a street chase after a £17 snatch from a grain store in Paisley Road West, Kinning Park, Glasgow, last night.

Shop assistant Mary McVey was serving a man in the store at 79 Paisley Road West when she saw him grab the contents of a green bag, containing the money, from beside the cash register.

He dashed out of the store, sped up Shirley Street, and threw the bag into a stationary van.

Man charged

Behind him was Miss McVey, shouting—"He's got my money."

Bystanders, including many factory hands in the street and perched on a van, threw the field until the police arrived.

Later a man was charged with theft at Partick Police Office. He will appear in court this morning.

GANG STEAL £1000 WORTH OF TYRES

Detectives were last night looking for a gang who stole tyres worth more than £1000 from a store at 17 Davidson Street, Glasgow, yesterday.

The gang used a lorry to remove the tyres.

LORD COVENTRY

STORY OF TAXI STRUGGLE TOLD BY EARL

THE Earl of Coventry told at Bow Street, London, yesterday of a struggle in a taxi with a man who, he said, had claimed to be able to return his wife's stolen jewellery.

Peter Howard (33), salesman, of no fixed address, was committed in custody charged with attempting to obtain £500 by false pretences with intent to defraud. He pleaded not guilty.

Lord Coventry said that between £3000 and £3500 worth of his wife's jewellery was stolen from their Mayfair flat last month. There was considerable press publicity.

The meeting

He received a phone call from a man who claimed to have the jewellery in front of him.

The caller arranged a meeting at Regent's Park outing-ground stables, and when he got there he met Howard.

After a short chat Howard they got into a taxi and drove towards Charing Cross. Howard asked him for £500.

Lord Coventry said other remarks of Howard's made him doubt whether the man knew anything about the jewellery.

"I saw a policeman and called out to the taxi-driver to stop, and as the cabs came I grabbed Howard. There was a short struggle.

"The taxi stopped and Howard managed to open the door. As he made to get out I tackled him.

"The policeman came up and I told him who I was and handed over the accused. Howard denied everything, and said I had asked him to share the cab," Lord Coventry said.

Howard said he wanted to apply for legal aid and pray for a medical report. "I don't remember anything about this case," he added.

There has to be restraint

Lord Dilhorne, the Lord Chancellor, said in Belfast yesterday that there had to be restraint—based on the realisation that any increase in wages, immediately reflected in higher prices, was to the detriment.

They had got to accept increased productivity by the united effort of Government, management, and workers.

The Lord Chancellor, who was addressing the Young Ulster Group, stated that they had to face a time in the non-industrial future when possibly three-fifths of the population would have to minister not only themselves but the needs of those who were being educated and the sick who were retired.

RIGHT AWAY ACTION

T208 14" Table
T206 14" Table plus V.H.F. Radios 59 gns
T207 17" Table
T211 17" Table plus V.H.F. Radios 79 gns

These superb new AC/DC models in attractive walnut-veneer cabinets provide pictures of outstanding quality with utmost reliability. In addition, models T211 and T211 have facilities for the reception of the Interference-free Home, Light and Third V.H.F. radio broadcasts.

Make the most of the new I.T.A. programmes by visiting your Ekco Dealer today and seeing for yourself the fine performance and fine appearance of Ekcovision receivers. But always remember that there is another quality, not so easily recognised, but equally important. That quality is reliability. The name EKCO and the excellence of engineering for which it stands is your guarantee of long-lasting viewing enjoyment.

T211 17" table with V.H.F. radio 98 gns

T208 14" table with V.H.F. radio 98 gns

T205 24" table plus V.H.F. radio (radio chassis). 138 gns.

T212 24" table plus V.H.F. radio, plus 4-speed record player. 118 gns.

EKCOVISION

best way to ALL stations

E. K. COLE LTD. EKCO WORKS SOUTHEND-ON-SEA ESSEX

Royal suite for U.S. tour named

THE Queen has invited Mr J. Diefenbaker, the Prime Minister of Canada, and Mr Selwyn Lloyd, the Foreign Secretary of Britain, to accompany her on Ministers-in-Attendance for her State visit to the United States next month.

Her suite will include two Canadian Army men—Brigadier J. Aird Ilsley as equerry, and Colonel E. Assells as medical officer — it was announced from Buckingham Palace yesterday.

In attendance

In addition the suite will consist of—The Countess of Leicester, lady-in-waiting; Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Shuttleworth Adams, Private secretary; Lady Jane Baring, lady-in-waiting.

Lieutenant-General Sir Frederick Browning, treasurer to the Duke of Edinburgh; Mr James Orr, private secretary to the Duke of Edinburgh; Lieutenant-Colonel Martin Charteris, assistant private secretary.

Commander Richard Colville, press secretary; Captain the Lord Plunket, equerry; Mr D. Dobson, private secretary to Mr Diefenbaker; Air Comm. Lathey, private secretary to Mr Selwyn Lloyd.

Air Commodore Sir Edward Fielden, captain of the Queen's flight, will also be in attendance during her six months.

The Liberals will go own way

THERE will be no pacts of any kind—we Liberals will continue to go our own sweet way."

Mr H. Harris, general director of the Liberal Party, said this on the eve of the opening of the Liberal assembly at Southport last night.

Smiling faces

After the significant setback in the Liberal vote at the Gainsville by-election, there were many smiling faces among the 1500 delegates that about had been at any time since the war, Mr Harris said.

The Liberals had 332 candidates in the field, and this number would rise to 350.

No voting has been set, but he believed that the Gainsville result would make more Liberal supporters than candidates.

Scotland's

Favourite Tomato Soup

Obtainable at all Grocers and Food Stores

ENJOY IT OFTEN

Liberals will oppose a Nat. Liberal

At three-cornered contest became a certainty for the Dunbartonshire constituency at the next General Election when Mr D. E. Macdonald, organiser of the South-West Scotland Liberal Federation, announced yesterday that a Liberal candidate would definitely be fighting the seat.

The present member is Mr Hall Macpherson, National Liberal, who is an Under-Secretary of State for Scotland. Mr Graeme Mowbray, a lecturer at Glasgow University, has been chosen as the Labour candidate for the constituency.

"A Liberal candidature has not yet been chosen, but an announcement is likely shortly," said Mr Macdonald.

"We have started the ball of possible candidates, with something like 20 names, but there are certain primaries. We naturally want to get the strongest possible candidate."

DIRECTORS WANT THE MAN WHO CAN MIX

THE qualities directors look for first in graduates seeking a job are—Humour, ability to mix, wide interests, tact, and poise.

Next in line come qualities of character, leadership, responsibility, honesty, resilience, and drive.

This is shown by the results of a survey in 1956-57 of the use of university graduates in industry published today by Political and Economic Planning under the title of "Graduates in Industry" (18s).

Specimen replies from some firms were:—In the main, we don't think a First man is, as a rule, the man we want.

Brilliant academic distinction doesn't mean a thing as far as personality is concerned.

We don't want people with Firsts as they often tend to have no sense of humour.

No backroom boys

Other replies were:—They must have personality, have their feet on the ground, and be good mixers. No backroom boys!

We want graduates who will do the work without fuss and fit into the organisation.

One firm said: "You are more likely to get successful graduates in a man from a residential university," and another stated: "Practical universities with a tradition for digs or living at home are hopeless."

One firm went so far as to say, "If a man comes from Cambridge we'll take him even if he's blind."

Bring your own train?

A new Rolls-Royce sports ground to be opened at Crookham, Hampshire, on Saturday will have a ¼-mile long miniature railway track—the largest in Scotland.

It will circle one of the two football pitches, and will be constructed for testing during the half-hall season.

In the £70,000 sports ground—to be opened by Rolls-Royce chairman Lord Hives—there is a Rugby field, hockey field, cricket square, three tennis courts, a bowling green, and a pavilion.

Boy, 13, had spree with stolen £21

A 13-year-old Hutchesontown boy who stole a purse containing £21 from a pram went on a spree with another boy of the same age, Assistant Sheriff Thomas Cleve Bound yesterday.

The friend said the purse in the pram was left outside a high door by a woman visiting her sister.

The lad was seen handing over the pram, and later the purse was found in the entrance.

Pie and cake meal

After the theft, said the friend, the boy was another lad, and met him in Motherwell. He bought sweets, fags, two meals, bacon, eggs, and cream cakes, and took him to the cinema.

When they came out of the pictures they had a meal of pies and cakes and went to the cinema again in New Stevenston.

Most of the money — £16 — was later recovered.

The boy's mother told the Court she had already repaid over £3 of the stolen money. Sheriff Thomas Young deferred sentence till October 25 to allow her to make good the balance.

Opera singers get 30s rise

The month-old strike of 120 members of the chorus of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, and the Sadler's Wells Theatre was settled yesterday.

They will get a 30s increase, including overtime.

Under their old contracts the Covent Garden singers received £11 10s a week and the Sadler's Wells singers £10 10s.

Stolen tower wagon found

Glasgow Corporation's tower wagon, stolen on Tuesday from near a house depot in Royal Street, Govan, has been found undamaged in Sandy Road, Renfrew, about three miles away.

Through police men were alerted as he on the lookout for it, the yesterday wagon—used for overhead wire repairs—made its unauthorised out understated.

FURNITURE
for the million—produced by the highly skilled few

Planned by designers who have 'rub hands' for their skill in the fun of keen competition—created by craftsmen who Learn their job from A to Z, whose experience is great and whose prowess is unsurpassed—finished by experts with a pride in their task, and inspected at every vital stage by uncompromising and unrelenting critics—Shieldhall and Beith Furniture sets a standard of excellence which few can equal. Produced in a Factory which is a model of science and spaciousness, equipped with modern machinery, yet retaining those phases of traditional workmanship which demand the craftsman's skill and experience—a factory, in fact, which is yet another of the one hundred and twenty owned and financed by you, the 1,100,000 Co-operators of Scotland . . .

See the result in your local Co-operative Furniture Showroom. Choose, first, the excellent woods which have been used—how carefully they have been selected, with what consummate skill and care the graining has been matched and cut, in full value and beauty brought out in the exquisite finish. Next, the design—traditional, yet with a conservative modernity, wholly in keeping with the modern comfortable home.

And finally, compare price, the price, value for value, with any other Furniture on the market. Then you will appreciate why we say—

Speaking, furnishing, guaranteeing, these vital processes in purchasing the fine furniture which illustrates from Shieldhall . . .

A modern home from the Shieldhall Range. See and price them at your local Co-op.

S.C.W.S. on the Label your guarantee of Quality
AT THE CO-OP

AND REMEMBER—THE TRADING SURPLUS IS RETURNED TO YOU AS DIVIDEND

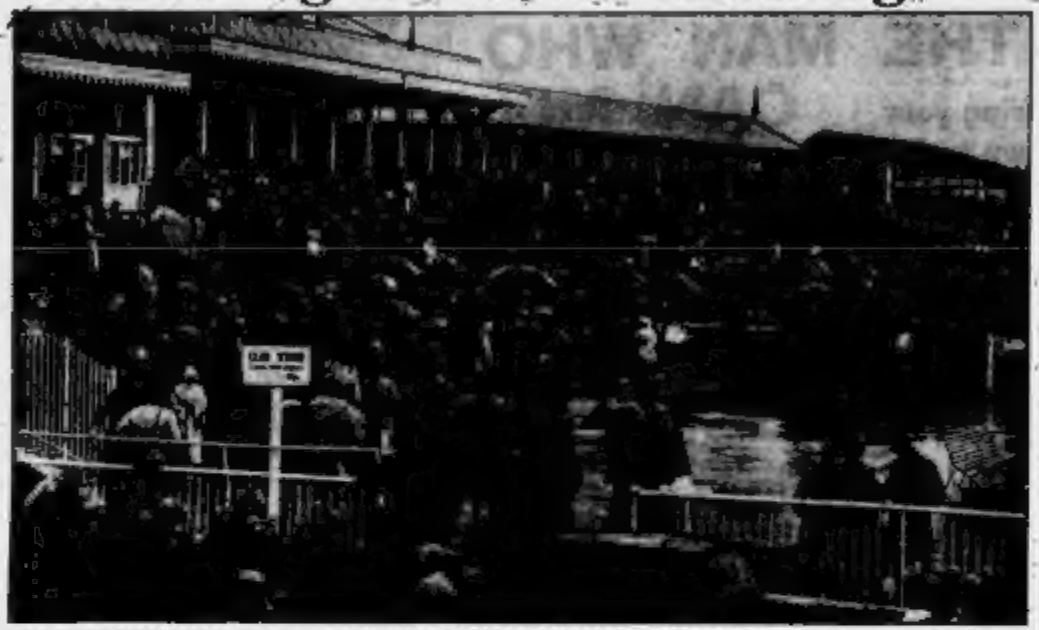
Brolac and MuracPEP
THE PERFECT PAIR FOR PAINTING

Brolac is the modern gloss paint—use the enamel to give the exterior or inside decoration. Murac P.E.P. is the perfect plastic emulsion paint for a luxury-type finish on walls and ceilings. Both are highly washable . . .

stocked and recommended by
PETER FISHER
Glasgow Colmonell Phone 021 0913
[illegible] High Street, C.1. 96 Maxwell Street, C.1
207 Sauchiehall Street, C.1 87 Shawlands Road, Shawlands

Guaranteed HAIR!
FREE CONSULTATION BY APPOINTMENT
COMPLETE REMOVAL
£1 £1
[illegible]
[illegible]
EPILATION INSTITUTE
18 Bothwell Street, Glasgow

Something about horse-racing . . .



A race meeting always draws the crowds—even on a day like yesterday. A persistent drizzle and overcast skies failed to dishearten those brave types at Ayr Racecourse. The big race of the day was the Ayr Jubilee Cup.

He slept during his debut

Portrait by Stephen Orr.

JIMMY Logan didn't quite manage to be born in a theatrical trunk—but he almost for that lapse a month or two later when he made his first appearance on the stage, being sung to by a music-hall star. He admits that to-day he remembers little of his début—he was asleep at the time.

But that was probably the only lapse occasion that the Logan cot and gaiety wasn't at half pace ears before an audience — and TO-DAY'S SCOT has known all fields.

Today's SCOT

He's toured the "circuits" and played the London Palladium—he's a radio comic and a star of both TV systems — and in between he plays in revues shows that run till pantomime and midsummer that run all summer.

Yes, for all two busy and packed fortnes, he still has not reached his 30th birthday.

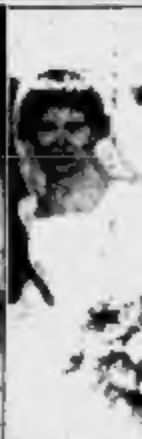
Apart from that fact alike the obvious question—where does he go from here? He is a success, but there are still worlds for him to conquer—he has, for instance, a hankering to try a straight play some time.

He may try to stay in the all things things in Scotland, but we can be sure the showbiz jet will lure him, he will keep coming back to us.

Stephen Orr.

Autumn wedding bells

Miss Rachel MacDonald, Rannoch Avenue, Cathcart, Glasgow, and Dr Thomas Douglas, pose after wedding in Cathcart Parish Church.



Miss Barbara [illegible], Newfarm, Glasgow, who were married [illegible]

PLAYING FOR SUPPER

The strangest basketball games are played at Marineland, Palos Verdes, California. The "team" members are porpoises which swim across—and under—the court. A gigantic water tank, observers the enemy porpoise on the left. He has just scored and, according to the rules, will collect a fish as his reward.

A king's bride

This recent study from Istanbul shows the 17-year-old Princess Fawzia, whose engagement to King Faisal of Iraq was announced last week-end, and her mother. King Faisal met the princess during his summer holiday in Turkey. The princess still has a year to complete at secondary school.

LE MANS CELEBRATION

Members of the Ecurie Ecosse motor racing team attended a presentation in the Royal Scottish Automobile Club, Richmond Square, Glasgow, yesterday to celebrate the 1957 victory at Le Mans. They are (left to right) David Murray, Ron Flockhart, I. C. Stephenson-Clarke (Scottish Motoring manager of Esso), Mateja Jamagnen, John Lawrence, P. Fermer (Esso), D. G. Campbell (Esso), and Willie Wilkinson.

...rs. 4 Tweedsmuir Grove, ... and Mr (or Mrs) Kirkwood, ... Orchestral) Church, ...church.

Miss Joan Maitland, Clarendon Drive, Pollokshields, Glasgow, and Mr Ian Grant—held in Campbell-Queen's, Park Church.

The view that vanished

A Paisley woman lost the view of a golf course and hills when houses were built around her home.

So Renfrewshire Valuation Court yesterday reduced her assessment by £9 to £78.

But on hearing the decision the county assessor, Mr William Stevenson, said, "I express my dissatisfaction and ask for the case to be stated."

The successful appellant was Mrs Margaret E. Lang, Wheatsheaf, Bushy Road, Paisley. On her behalf Mr J. C. T. MacRobert, solicitor, said that the house formerly stood in parkland and overlooked Braehead.

Now 70 to 80 houses had been built around and the view was of the large Glenburn housing scheme.

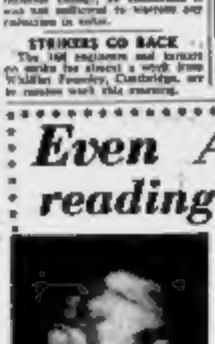
The assessor submitted that the appeal was not competent, but if the Court held that there was a material change, he considered it was not sufficient to warrant any reduction in value.

STRIKERS GO BACK

The 160 engineers and turners on strike for eleven weeks from Wickfine Precision, Cambridge, are to resume work this morning.

Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and her husband, Prince Bernhard, smile happily at each other as, in an open carriage, they drive through The Hague for the Queen's state opening of the Dutch Parliament.

Even Al has trouble reading women's minds



AL KRAN
If you were and believe . . .

ASK—do you find it difficult to understand how a woman's mind works? If it's any consolation, what a woman is thinking is a big problem even to MIND READER Al Koran!

—Al can read a woman's mind, but he finds it more difficult than dealing with men.

"Women," he says, "are always changing their minds. It's if we minded we be told. . . ."

MY mind was at once back to Al. In a few minutes demonstration the TV star made me think pretty hard. "Take this dictionary, and pick any word," he said. I did—and Al guessed it.

Demonstration

Demonstration followed demonstration . . . and Al made only one slight slip. He doesn't claim to be infallible. "How's it done?" I asked.

"Mind reading," said Al with a grin, but he elaborated it to mind reading plus deduction.

People, it seems, have a more recent and permanent guilt, less a choice of two recently overdone. The average person will normally part one placed on a certain position. In without looking, Al can tell which one they've picked.

But that's an over simplification of the matter. There's also that "sensing" Al says inside him when he's right.

And a clue can such as Al is preparing at the Empress, Glasgow, this week is child's play to a man who in 1951 missed the first three in the Derby words before the race was run. And there was no fancy business either. . . . the predictions are made on television.

Why hasn't Al retired on how his fee can as a wealthy man, only working once a year to run the Derby winner? If his own money was invested he might let the policemen be clouded by form, he says.

No Magic!

★ How did Al become a mind reader? In fact he was a shell-shocked paratrooper produced case certain in hospital. Like many people who get psychiatric treatment, he became interested in psychology.

He began to perform experiments in mind reading and developed his natural ability for it. "We all have this ability," he says, "only some people don't use it."

Al prefers cabaret with it current. In a night club he gets the audience close to him, and the reluctance who would have are usually ripped to shreds of the audience—by chance is no chance of them being taken for granted.

But if you've seen Al work on TV or the stage and have consequently puzzled, don't worry too much. He has a gimmick that the late Professor Einstein failed to find out how to do them.

The gimmick was discovered by a demonstration Al gave him in America.

Al thinks there's a lot in the power of belief. He wants it was most convincing enough AND you suppose you'll get by, you'll get it.

The FAMILY STANDBY for STOMACH UPSETS
MILK of MAGNESIA
'MILK of MAGNESIA'
So gentle for children . . .
. . . so thorough for grown-ups

BOOKS

- H-BOMB: He says, "Keep it."
- NEW NOVELS: "Spoiler" in fashion.
- RELIGION: The Boy Christ Died.

Don't let the Reds nibble

Air Marshal Sir John Slessor's views on "The Great Deterrent" can be easily summed up in two sentences from his book with that title (just published by Cassell (18s).

"If," he writes, "we are not prepared in the very ultimate resort to accept the possibility of recourse to atomic the certainty of annihilation—then we are lost.

"I for my part see no superior attraction in being dominated-suffed by a Russian lawyer, or paraded in chains by V.2 missiles deployed along the Channel Coast, rather than risk annihilation by the hydrogen bomb."

But although he feels that we ought to have the hydrogen bomb to preserve, he does not believe that the Russians will risk an H-war.

In fact, he thinks that the Reds would be well content to see an agreement between "the heads," not for moral reasons, but because nothing would help the Kremlin better than for the West to discard the one decisive weapon in which a six million at least equality and until that has irretrievable in the Communist bloc as mass-power and conventional armaments.

Infiltration

Sir John reckons that the Russians will be perfectly content with a policy of infiltration, a whole here and another there. And it is for this reason that he is deeply concerned about the present tendency in the West to "unlearn" our defences to a point at which it might be impossible for us to cope conventionally with local wars which a Red rebels might make necessary.

It is difficult to see how he squares his belief in the retention of the great deterrent with the other that it is many times to be used. But on this broader question of being prepared for all eventualities he is a deliberate kind of game by using a set of extremely sound sense.

RALPH G. HILL

Nicola Sloan

Edwardian elegance

URSULA Sloan, who now has 10 books to her credit, turns to autobiography in The Elegant Edwardian (Hamish Hamilton 25s). Her childhood was spent in her father's evening tailoring, and obviously both she and her father liked the Edwardian era.—Father evening coat of the period, along with that very grumpy woman, Queen Caroline, for some time their neighbour friend and then an enemy on enemy. Light, pleasant reading.

In Her Testimony and To-day (Hamish Hamilton 16s) Muriel Jacob provides another in the "Mr" series—a collection of memories, thoughts, etc., about many people and houses and silverware.

Mary Kingsley, a Victorian in the Jungle (Methuen 21s) is a biography, edited by Odette Campbell of the great explorer's life. She also selected extracts from Mary Kingsley's own writings. Strongly recommended.

Facts, but no fire

JIM Bishop's hour-by-hour account "of the most dramatic day in the history of the world"—The Day Christ Died (Weidenfeld & Nicolson 21s)—is the vastly information product of devoted and untiring effort. But neither Mr Bishop's painstaking research nor his unquestioned sincerity were quite enough for such a work.

One suspects that in the end Mr Bishop was lost in admiration of all the facts he had assembled, so they all went in, piled high on one another—in addition to the hour-by-hour chapters there are informative pieces on the Jews, Jesus, and the Romans.

But the fix of the dramatic day is smothered in the facts, and what's worse, sometimes in Bishop's sublime faith. His writing, moreover, is at times pompous and woolly.

There is something of the same fuss as before and unnecessary about Bishop's re-creation of the thoughts of Jesus—"a hurt, and hurt deeply, to know that He was ordered to die at a moment when He was not ready, when He would rather be almost glad." Then, piece is put in the mouths of the point of the picture he tell us that at 1 a.m. Jesus was collected from Gethsemane, a subsequent division of the authorities?

For the expert and enthusiast in medieval architecture and religious symbolism there has just published Gothic Architecture and Scholasticism (Archabbey Press, Latrobe, Pa., 3 dollars), by D. E. Panofsky ($3.75). Because of small dollars are found with particular to lectures, plates, charts, etc. An informative piece of scholarship.

Colin Maclaren

Also received

Evolutionary Theory and Christian Belief, the Unresolved Conflict (Sheldon 12s 6d), by David Lack. The Wesleys and the English Language (Epworth 7s 6d), by C. H. Pybus. And three additions to Collins Fontana series, Christianity and History by Herbert Butterfield, Medieval Thought by F. Merlan and The Crusades by Hans Eberhard Mayer, translated by J. R. Phillips, at 3s 6d.

Scots history

PRIME demand has made Oliver and Boyd decide to re-issue the late Agnes Mure Mackenzie's "History of Scotland," and the first volume, The Foundation of Scotland (12s) is out this week. It deals with the period from the beginnings of Scottish history to 1286 which saw the emergence of a Scottish nation.

A CHANGING WORLD

THE long and complicated history of Russia or "a living and inexhaustible whole" from the beginning down to to-day is told by John Lawrence in "Russia in the Making" (Allen and Unwin 21s) published to-day.

Lawrence claims that the "nationalisation" of recent years is nothing new—it's on the tradition of Russian history. But he stresses the importance of the changes brought about by the Revolution, and dwells in the more recent post-Lenin, a book for the beginner as much as for the student.

The modern world forces so many changes that the ordinary person has quite a job keeping track of them all, especially when geography is concerned. To help him on his way three recent books have arrived and "An Atlas of World History" (Methuen 15s).

Topical and very funny

"POP. Goes the Easel" is topical and frequently extremely funny novel. City of Spies (Hodder and Stoughton 15s), Colin MacInnes has turned to the Africans and West Indians who have poured into British cities in the war. They call themselves "Spades," and the city is Notting Hill.

There are two heroes, Johnny Fortune, a wily but winning Nigerian, and a well-meaning welfare officer, Montgomery Pew, and through them we are introduced to the rules and clubs that the "Spades" have made their own, and meet some splendidly bold characters. Like Mr Lord Almighty, the calypso-singer, and the political Earl Marx-Be.

This isn't a "colour problem" book—it is a most readable novel about people who aren't always good or right or wrong.

A mistake in a church service is the starting point of Cecil Roberts's Love is the Last (Hodder 15s). He clearly went in a little before he got into English conventions, and Sunday the congregation, nice Sunday the Queen of Scarpia, and the two poets arts, minds and memories otherwise.

In an Autobiography Mr Roberts Cannon gives much at the present time from Italy to Egypt, Spain, and the U.S., and the result is a well-made comic novel.

Spanner, by John Lodwick (Hodder 15s) is about an English writer who lands up on an island in a Central African lake and discovers that it is ruled by an extraordinary Spaniard who lacks a bit of a bullies for writers. Much comedy and whose original authors is "Guard Up, Mother Brown." Witty fancy, and it might be possible to track an allegory through it, but frankly, I'd just read it for what it is.

Geoffrey Willans goes first some and trashes Jewish in The Whacking Arrow (Hutchinson 15s) but for the most, and prickly laughs of new novels are pretty regular things for now, the brilliant makes us have a kind of "Lucky Jim" hangover.

Readable and quite exciting but it left me with the perplexed feeling I had read it all somewhere before.

In The Elwood Wager (Methuen 15s 6d) Dame Rebecca pits some fine salty lines out of a cricket match between rival "Manor Houses" and much at the crisis—and you don't have to be a cricket fan to laugh out loud at it.

Liars Indeed! The Papal Dolls (Bevan 15s 6d). Psychology pure and simple somewhat unbalanced by playing with paper dolls and can't get out of them when she grows up. If you like this particular cup of tea, it's well brewed here. (see Mon.

EVERY PILLAR-BOX Links You With Skerry's
The Pioneer in Britain of CORRESPONDENCE Tuition for EXAMS.
Free Guide from
13 BATH STREET, GLASGOW
Douglas 7357

WOMAN'S Page NEWS

PAY PACKET REPORT — and it's YOUR turn to blush, girls!

No wonder mother says you're mean . . .

WOMAN'S PAGE

By CLARE CAMPBELL

HOW MUCH?

See the GasMiser

New AUTOMATIC CONTROL

• QUICKER
• COLDER ECONOMICAL

30% TRADE-IN ALLOWANCE

on the

GasMiser

with Automatic Control

—and your GAS SERVICE

RIVIERA SKETCHBOOK — — — TWO

Pigtail— or calypso?

DAZZLING GEM RINGS

The ANGUS

HENDERSONS

Leeds card club

TOOTHACHE NOW A LUXURY IN ISLES

"TO three Gillings—£12 7s 6d." That was the dentistry bill paid recently by a Hebridean girl, and previous little of it went to the dentist.

Nearly all the money was spent on fares—car, bus, and plane—from a South Uist croft to Glasgow.

For toothache is a luxury in the Outer Hebridean islands of North Uist, South Uist and Barra.

If you're hanging on get away from it all to Hebridean peace! Remember what you said when the pain last threw a demon.

The answer is three islands are a dental school needs a pair that doctor to get looking then their signs will be saved.

By JOHN FAIRWEATHER

The dentist is on the grounds of the island schools, and it's a case of "Open wide, both parents hopping in turn for a hand appointment.

No time

"My dentistry left has enough would have been covered grounds dozens of holes when we met with relatives on the mainland and the South Uist girl who made a flight to Glasgow to keep her dentist appointment.

"We are sad at seldom have for about two years, and some go further to Glasgow or Glasgow.

"Invariably we are sent home dressed apart to return in two the schools for several the school dental service and what the boy will do. He rarely has time to take the train to visit his old relations.

"If the National Health provisions of course the first dentist's name in which diverse treatment for the Outer Hebrideans are dealt for any reinvestigation at Eaird."

Ray of hope?

The smart of the dental future in the islands is cast among people that won't attend to save their speak.

Students are unable to leave their young hospital and even if they can agree the working difficulties, some students can't leave their homes for two or three days.

In South Uist the philosophy is practised by a local dentist who has purchased himself the impression plastering tool for a dentist to manufacture work with a minimum of two visits.

On the hottest three weeks a day of heat has many islanders feeling terrible.

"Many times, half or all patients go to the islands over an official of the National Health Executive Council of Inverness yesterday. "Unbelievable payments have been offered.

But it was the attempted that they had been trying hard for a long time.

BLOW IT!

BLOWING a bubble for Edinburgh during her visit to the South Queensferry Clydesdale at Perth yesterday, is the Duke—keeping at least he learned. He could disappointed.

Queen would bow, says Mr Strydom

THE congress of South Africa's ruling National Party struggled in Johannesburg yesterday over the question—"Would the President of an independent South African republic have to bow to the Queen?"

Junior African Premier Mr Johannes Strydom said that in South Africa it would be the other way round. The Queen would have to the President" was all a matter of courtesy he declared.

"If the President of the United States, the mightiest country in the world—could Britain the world bow to the Queen as a matter of courtesy.

And if the British Queen came to South Africa as a matter of courtesy she would have to the President of South Africa."

Election question

Mr Strydom was replying to an party question opposing a resolution stating that the party up all efforts and Republic. He commented are popular question. They believed that separation or no monarchy wealth would be under the crown and in the British ship.

Mr Strydom urged the needs or demands the Commonwealth a South African republic would be separated from the British Crown.

The party's Natal Council on April next year's election will show whether South Africa wants a republic.

Britain may ignore Soviet ban

BRITAIN was indicated in a Note to the Soviet Government that she may ignore the recent Soviet decision to close to foreign shipping a large area of the Bay of Peter the Great on which Vladivostok lies.

The Note delivered in Moscow on Tuesday declares: "H.M. Government does not consider that proposed decree binding upon them they subject to any dispute, it is not also hope that the Soviet Government will reconsider the decree which is contrary to the international packing of International law."

The Note also states that H.M. Government might find themselves that the Bay is beyond the limit of the territorial sense of the word, or that if Soviet security were disputed by the Soviet Government as to either internal waters of the U.S.S.R.

FAMILY PORTRAIT?

Actor Mark Dana has the answer as his glamorous wife Lynn Loring looks on. She said he himself was the boy for the role. Above, a couple the 12-year-old Mark and 8-year-old Meghan play the Dana family out and posed for above-and-right photo

CUPBOARD KILLER JAILED FOR LIFE

FRANCIS Charles Alfred Harrison, whose wife's battered body was found in a cupboard in an unoccupied flat at their address, was at the Old Bailey, London, yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering her.

Harrison, a married painter, Edgar Gardens, Grand Rise under charge as evidence as he heard in impress

But the chief prosecutor Mr. R. Parker said Harrison is a male of violent and vile character by two women in his life time.

Couldn't remember

The prosecution said that when put [illegible] to him of the Grand Alex Plan Hotel [illegible] one of [illegible] made [illegible] that he [illegible] whole [illegible] after he had been hugging him.

He also said [illegible] what happened afterwards.

At a previous hearing [illegible] were read from a [illegible] Harrison. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Takes brother's place in team

A.I.F. Duckworth, the intermediate pianist, to get quite fit, by Jim whitehorn from Glasgow H.S.F.P. team for to-night's match with Allan Glen's F.P. at Old Anniesland. L.F. Duckworth, a younger brother, who captained the school 1st XV last season, fills the vacancy.

MAIN CHANGE

Duckworth (Tuesday, Collegiate v. Glasgow H.S.F.P.) is expected to be followed by the following: Lindsay, Hollywood, Dunlop, Lowrie, and J. C. Cameron; F.J. Stevenson and J.S. Murdoch; A.J. Hay, M. Gurney, C. Jones, D. Anderson, J. Cross, C.G. Fraser, R. Wilson, and I. Campbell.

Jas. M. Muir (School of the Rue Cowan, Aberdeen, Lorraine, I. Scott, D. Forrest, W. Hollywood, and J. Gardiner; R. Gilchrist and Woodward; R. Richmond, R. Wilson, R. Hollywood, J. Anderson, R. Anderson, D. Hamilton, and W. Inglis.

Allan Glen's F.P. (away) (at their ground, Anniesland, Glasgow): Thomson; T. Cathcart and W. J. Smith; J. Bryden, J. Cowie, Hamilton, D. Lawrie, and M. Wood

SCOTS RETURN 5-1 VICTORY...

But Irish gave our defence some very anxious moments

THE Scottish League side defeated the Irish League 5-1 at Dalymount Park, Dublin, last night, but, despite the score, the Scots were severely tested—and not all pressed number.

Indeed, the Scottish side could, at present, hardly have more away from home, anything but satisfied with the team's number.

Only five were changed with unchanged—replacements — goal-keeper Brown, Evans, McColl, Parker, and Reid. The goalkeeper was magnificent—he had to be. Shots raged in on the Irish fortunately, spurred on by the 25,000 crowd, attempting to beat him. Indeed, the fact that they did not make the score a bit more respectable looking was due to Brown, who can also have Younger's hands may clap.

Evans may not be as discovery- ing a figure as George Young, but he made up for this with some really hard work, and is quick at defence he could not be faulted.

Clever leader

McColl seems best the midst company. He served all his forwards at one time or another, always ensuring his colleagues got, subject Parker of any of his long-outward class... Time and again the right back caused dishonest men wrench with moves that bewildered the Irish.

Up front Reid served his fellow forwards well. He created the move which led to Scotland's first goal, but on the second, hit the inside of the post himself, then scored Scotland's final goal from a Scott cross in the closing stages. He was a ready to run into the International side.

Collins had only two fouls—he let his temper get the better of him. In the first half, after he had been beaten in a tackle, he retaliated against Dennis Leahy, and was spoken to by the referee.

By Tom Jeffrey

An Irish wag in the crowd roared—"Send him back to Manchester Street."

Another chance?

Otherwise he was his usual energetic and effective self, and scored three goals.

Kelly scored a goal in his first "cap" match, and I think he deserves another chance. He is inclined to be a little too slow off the mark, but I am sure he can remedy this and remain in the running for further honours.

Wingers Bing and Scott were the most disappointing forwards on view. Both tried far too much on their own, and I have a feeling that, while Bing will probably be given a chance to redeem himself, Scott may find himself on the substitutes bench.

Reid played well at left half, but he had no team that no ordinary game, and I can't see him displacing Docherty in the National side. Cunningham, although he played a good game, was rather shaky to begin with, as were the whole Scottish team.

Three corners

Indeed, in the opening stages of Ireland as if this much vaunted Irish team were going to score a big upset. They attacked continually for the first nine minutes, forcing three corners in the process.

However, in the ninth minute, Collins opened the scoring for Scotland. Reid started the move, he chased the centre ball, Docherty beat his man back to his "keeper, and Collins slipped in to beat both of them.

Next goal came from Kelly. He collected the ball on his own, and, with the Irishmen expecting him to make progress, he shot from 25 yards to give Scotland a 2-0 lead at the interval.

In the eleventh minute of the second half Collins collected a cross from Scott, hit it against an Irish defender at the first attempt, and had it in the net as the second ball rebounded again, and then Reid beat through and scored on his own with 15 minutes to go.

Ireland's crumb of comfort came (1) seventeen from one, when Tuohy, the left winger, beat Brown.

League of Ireland—Kelly (Drumcondra); White (Transport) and Dempsey (Shamrock Rovers); Dennis (St. Patrick's Athletic); Mackey (Shamrock Rovers), and Nolan (Shamrock Rovers); Peyton (Drumcondra) and Peyton (Shamrock Rovers); Leahy (Everton), Hamilton (Shamrock Rovers) and Turner (Shamrock Rovers).

Scottish League—Brown (Rangers); Parker (Falkirk) and Caldow (Rangers); McColl (Rangers), Evans (Celtic), and Reid (Rangers); Scott (Rangers) and Collins (Celtic); Reid (Hearts); Kelly (Raith Rovers) and Bing (Dundee).

Referee—J. Mulgrew (Dublin).

Keeper Bill Brown jumped high to stop this Irish shot. Brown played a magnificent game, and did a lot to prevent the Irish making the score more "respectable."

Sammy Reid looks determined as he fires this shot-off Paddy's foot.

Other results

SCOTTISH LEAGUE—DIVISION A

Aberdeen, Rovers 2 (Curran 2), Ayr United 1 (Hamilton), Raith Rovers 1 (Hamilton 2, own goal), Dundee 1 (Gray), Clyde 1 (Ferguson), Falkirk 1 (Wallace), Hearts 1 (Bauld), Motherwell 3 (McSeveney 2, Watkins), Partick Thistle 2 (Dunn 2), own goal), Queen's Park 1 (Peters), Cowdenbeath 1 (Cox), Rangers 2 (Scott, Caldow), Stirling Albion 1 (Hamilton), Morton 1 (Gardiner), Stranraer 1 (Gardiner), Third Lanark, Stenhousemuir 1 (Gray), St. Mirren 1 (Wilson), Celtic 1 (Fallon), Hibernian 1 (Preston), Dundee 2, Queen's Park 1, Aberdeen 2, Motherwell 1, Clyde 1, Hearts 1, Partick Thistle 1, Falkirk 1, Rangers 2, Raith Rovers 1, Third Lanark 1, Morton 1, Celtic 1, Hibernian 1, Stirling Albion 1, Stranraer 1, Stenhousemuir 1.

1st Exciting week OF LITTLEWOODS 2D NO LIMIT TREBLE CHANCE POOL ALREADY THOUSANDS ARE CHANGING TO LITTLEWOODS

IN YOUR STARS

Capricorn (December 23-January 20)—You receive an unexpected windfall or your chance to put your talents to the best advantage.

Aquarius (January 21-February 19)—A new interest takes up most of your time this evening and pleasant pastimes may result in the future.

Pisces (February 20-March 20)—You are full of new enthusiasm and should tackle a difficult assignment, but not be too ambitious.

Aries (March 21-April 20)—Your financial affairs are improving and you should be able to buy something you have long desired.

Taurus (April 21-May 20)—A new correspondent will provide a pleasant surprise. Do not indulge in too much hot entertaining.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)—Unexpected news will be received. Be careful not to overdo things. An interesting new friendship is likely.

Cancer (June 21-July 22)—There will be plenty to keep you busy during the week, but it is a satisfying period.

Leo (July 23-August 22)—Watch your step to-day, especially as regards money matters. Be careful not to overstep limits.

Virgo (August 23-September 22)—An opportunity to clear up a minor misunderstanding will arise and should not be missed. Travel is favoured.

Libra (September 23-October 22)—Do not be too sure of your superiority. Work in your usual quiet way and don't take unnecessary risks.

Scorpio (October 23-November 22)—Some unexpected news from those in authority is likely to arrive during the morning.

Sagittarius (November 23-December 21)—The day will be a busy one, but you should find time for entertaining friends.

(Is this your birthday?)

You are an intelligent type and can make a success of anything you undertake. Business matters should be particularly prosperous and you have a happy domestic during the year.

R & A CAPTAIN GETS OFF TO A PERFECT START

—But he forgets the sovereign

Mr. John B. Beck, who captained Britain's winning Walker Cup team at St Andrews in 1955, gained another honour at St Andrews yesterday when he played himself into office as captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club.

The nerve-racking experience of driving in before several hundred spectators had no effect on Mr. Beck, for he began to bring in the ... the golden sovereign, traditional reward for the caddie who retrieves the ball and returns it to him.

Very few of the crowd realised this, for Mr Beck made a gentleman of handing over the coin, then whispered to the caddie:—"Don't look at that just now.—I'll have a private meeting with you later."

When the congratulations were over Mr Beck disappeared into the locker room and reappeared with the coin, which he handed over to the caddie.

The honour fell this year to 42-year-old Stuart Rodger, St Andrews, a regular caddie who has caught it ever since he was a boy.

The new captain is the perfect shot—one of the finest seen at the championship for many years—as the last of the seven bridge across the Burdigan.

The caddies, who had ranged themselves across the fairway, converged on the ball, but Stuart Rodger threw himself sideways, cleaning the ball in his left hand with all the appearance of a cup fielder.

Rodger said afterwards—"I have been calling the clubs of Major General H. G. Morrison, who has been playing with Mr Beck during the early part of this week. I had plenty of time to study Mr Beck's game. I knew that if he hit the ball properly he would play it with a slight draw, so I positioned myself accordingly. It was a good thing for me that I held the ball at the first attempt for I had taken but longer and would have lost it."

The Rev. Norman H. Wood, short ... and A. gale club ...

A proprietary Scotch is a brand of whisky owned and marketed by the blender or distiller. Gilbey's Spey-Royal comes from the heart of the Highlands, with access to the unbelievably soft waters of the Scottish peat moors, and it is from that Spey Royal one of the finest proprietary whiskies has come, made for nearly 100 years.

Veroha was the "Dux" putter at Gleneagles

If 13-year-old Miss Verona Bickson, who has been given a special leave of absence from Nairn Academy to play in the "Scottish Daily Mail" amateur mixed foursomes golf tournament on the King's Course at Gleneagles Hotel, can read her textbooks the way she reads greens she'll quickly overtake her schoolmates when she returns home.

She proved this yesterday when, in partnership with 20-year-old Ronnie Gordon, waiter at the R.A.C. Dunblane—who, incidentally, has been very ill and may not be able to attend the international golf jubilee at Sunningdale, County Down, next week—she contributed to no small measure to the defeat of J. B. Strudwick and Scottish international Mrs Betty Singleton (Prestwick St Nicholas), the 1952 winners.

By Ian W. Murray

Holing everything up to 3yd., she accomplished a feat which gave her side the lead at the eleventh, and, at the fourteenth, after bunkering her drive, earned her opponents with a 30- putt, to square the issue.

The Prestwick St Nicholas couple, who throw away a chance to retrieve the holiday by taking three putts at the short sixteenth, did win the next, where their kingdom hung a 4yd. putt, but, at the last hole, lost any chance they had of keeping the match alive when Henderson's long approach putt ran 6yd. past the hole.

Other previous holders, A. G. Park and Miss M. Park (Bonnyfield), were also defeated, and with the loss withdrawal of last year's winners, Colin McLachlan and Miss Margaret Myles (Alloa)—who took up a new business appointment this week—only Fife golfers Ian Wilkie Barnes and Jack Crocker (Lisa) are now left with a supreme opportunity for the first one to win the title twice.

The best golf of the day came from Stirling County skaters Jimmy Walker and Mrs G. Marshall (Falkirk Tryst), who, after losing the first hole to a 4, won the next eight, reaching the turn in 33, and went on to defeat J. M. Cockburn and Miss E. Shaw (Monifieth) by 5 and 3.

This, however, was not the biggest winning margin. A. M. Hedley and Miss J. Lawrence (Dunfermline) also halved the tenth hole to cut their journey to the minimum.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS

SCRATCH PROOF

[illegible]

HANDICAP PROOF

[illegible]

Our golf prospects have rarely been brighter . . .

● Ronnie Shade . . . one of Scotland's many promising youngsters.

Says Ian W. Murray

SCOTLAND'S golf team captain, Donald Cameron, who isn't prone to exaggeration, has stated publicly that his men will retain the honours in the home amateur international series at Newcastle, Co. Down, next week.

And Mr Cameron thinks Scotland will continue to do so for the next four years at least!

While his opponents can hardly be expected to accept his prediction without a struggle, there is no doubt that, given the present players have at last begun to steadily consolidate, Scotland's prospects have rarely been brighter.

Most prominent among the youngsters is Alec Russell (Whitekirk) just back from Australia with the Walker Cup team.

In fact, he has formed the spearhead of the team's revival despite the fact that some six years ago, after a serious illness, he was told that it was unlikely he would play golf again.

He completed the climax to an amateur season, crowned by winning the British Boys' and Youths' Championships and the year rounding the month-mark of the Amateur Championship on Thursday only to be beaten by David Jack (Bishopton) when the following day won the title.

Sporting

Of the four newcomers to the side, one is 21-year-old Robin Galloway (Bruntsfield-on) who, if he applies his power to the right account, will be of immense value at Royal Portrush with its long carries from the tees.

And still "in the bag" for future reference, as it were, are many other promising youngsters, among them Ronnie Shade (Stobhillgate), whose presence was recognised by the selectors when they made him travelling reserve; John Young, the rapping assistant to the chief-ten, and Dundee schoolboy Robert Walker whose physique and ability completely obscure the fact that he is only 14 years of age.

Just how many of the fifth, I wonder, would rise from 3-some chairs into the middle of the crossroads green at Carnoustie as he did in the Boys' Championship last month?

That debut . . .

Back to the present—the Scots will pursue the trail first led by Ian Lunn, who made a very sporting picture at the week-end when, despite the fact that he was released after the ordinary 36 holes' play, accepted the invitation to play another round with Jimmy Walker (Irvine), who staked a claim to consideration in the national side by his performance in the Scottish Amateur tournament at Kilmarnock in the spring and endeavoured it when he won the Torphichen Trophy in a field which included several Walker Cup players.

The reputations of the three other tournament will also go before them—the new Scottish champion Doris Hetherington (Cumberland), who has only to get half as well as he did at Kilmarnock to reduce the record held by Jean Hastings (Malkins), the West of Scotland champion, and Scotia's round manufacturer Dick Smith, who made his debut in the Open championship at Troon in July and nearly won it!

Different

His opponents will recall that without the opportunity of having a practice round he finished joint 24th, only seven shots behind the winner, Bobby Locke of South Africa, the best performance by a British amateur since Eagar Watkins was runner-up 16 years ago.

And another feature captain Cameron-Gow thinks to overlook is Smith's ability as the most important foursome, proved by his record in the "Evening Times" Tournament in partnership with Alec Chapman.

Altogether the scene is very different from what it was a few years ago when the Scots had really hardly an Open championship spot to save their faces.

Until last year, in fact, they had never had a qualified entry comparable with those of the other countries only once—at Troon, in 1951.

Now, in addition to the gulf it has, there are players with the gift for golf. Their captain's confidence, therefore, is understandable.

'Robot' Ballingall retains title

A year ago Hamish Ballingall, machine-like strike player, went off with the West of Scotland Amateur Tournament for the "Daily Express" Golf Quaich with rounds of 66 and 68 over the Cowdor course. Yesterday, at Hilton Park, he won it a robot again, and retained the trophy with 137.

This gave him a stroke advantage over Corry Ball, the 20-year-old Lenzie professional, who had a record-breaking 67—13 out and 54 in—over the shorter course in the morning.

He ran down several long putts, but was not by the same round over the Hilton Park course in the afternoon.

He lost his advantage over Ballingall right away by starting with two 5's against perfect 4's by Ballingall, who carried on with another 4, then a 2 (the outcome of a 4-iron shot), and finished up with 41-41—78 for 32 to the turn.

Hall's prospects of doing even better looked less assured shortly afterwards.

Ballingall had also taken a 2 there and his second was the only really weak stroke he made in an excellent round.

In the morning Brian Cogan was at his best in doing 37 over Allander, but he took six strokes more over the longer course between he slipped two more putts.

He was playing from scratch against the amateurs, and first prize went to a local player, E. W. Harrison, who had seven strokes in each round. He completed the Allander course in 77 strokes, rounding off with consecutive 3's (fours) at the last two holes.

[Leading summaries (Allander Course and Hilton Park) illegible]

YOUR LOOKING AND LISTENING

TV 3.0 a.m.—Nobody for Women. 4.30—Watch with Mother. 5.0—Children's Hour. 6.0—Newsreel. 6.10—Sports Summary. 6.30—To-night. 6.40—Interlude. 7.0—News. 7.20—Behind the Headlines. 7.30—Dixy and Jeremy. 8.0—Dance Band. 8.30—Dr. Finlay's Casebook. 9.0—Panorama. 9.30—Boxing. 10.0—The Day in Sport. 10.10—News.

Home 4.30 a.m.—Wind. 6.15—News. 7.15—Morning Music. 7.45—Morning Meditation. 7.50—Listen to Your Horse. 8.0—Weather. 8.30—Around the Home. 8.40—Morning Music. 9.0—Time for Thought. 9.15—Service. 9.30—Music While You Work. 10.0—Service. 10.30—The Daily Service. 10.50—Music While You Work. 11.0—Service. 11.30—The Service Pattern. 12.0—Commentary on Music. 12.30—Farmers' Picture. 1.15—Announcements. 1.20—Music While You Dine. 1.45—Weather. News. 2.0—Listen with Mother. 2.30—Women's Hour. 3.30—Music While You Work. 4.0—Tea Time. 4.30—Children's Hour. 5.30—Scottish News. 5.50—Scottish Public Music. 6.15—Local Sports. 7.15—B.B.C. Scottish Orchestra. 8.15—Scottish Life. Work. 8.45—Scottish Questions. 9.0—News. 9.10—Music While You Work. 9.45—Close Down.

Light 7.0 a.m.—Morning Music. 7.30—News. 8.10—Music While You Work. 8.30—Weather. 8.40—Music While You Work. 9.0—Time Signals. 9.1—Music While You Work. 10.0—News. 10.10—Music While You Work. 11.0—Time Signals. 12.0—B.B.C. Scottish Orchestra. 1.0—Close down. 1.30—Listen with Mother. 2.0—Women's Hour. 3.0—Music While You Work. 3.30—Variety. 4.0—Tea Time. 4.30—Children's Hour. 5.30—Scottish News. 5.45—Scottish Sports. 6.0—Scottish Dance Band. 6.30—Scottish Interlude. 6.45—The Eye Hears Music. 7.0—News. 7.15—Scottish Life. 7.45—Scottish Music. 8.0—Here the Bagpipes. 8.15—Scottish Business Interlude. 8.45—Scottish Music. 9.0—News. 9.10—Scottish Interlude. 9.30—The Five Fifty Jackpot. 10.0—News. 10.10—Scottish Interlude. 10.30—Close Down.

Third 6.0 p.m.—Talk. 6.15—Concert. 7.0—Concert. 7.30—Lili Cassel. 8.0—Concert. 8.30—Concert. 9.0—Concert. 9.30—Concert. 10.0—Concert. 10.30—Concert. 11.0—Close Down.

STV 12.0 p.m.—The Boy O'Clock Club. 1.0—Scottish News. 1.15—The Secret Seals of Tongo Tar. 1.30—Adventure of Ian Jamieson. 2.0—Go Fish. 4.30—Children's Hour. 5.30—Scottish News. 5.45—Lost in Care. 6.0—Interlude. 7.30—Shadow Squad. 8.0—Shadow Squad. 8.30—Wrestling. 9.30—Scottish Interlude. 10.0—Close Down.

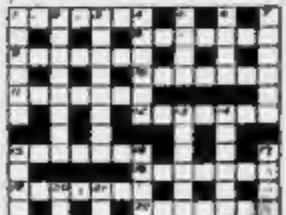
Anthony Hancock Light at 8 p.m.

Peter Ustinov B.B.C. TV at 8.30

● A tribute to B.B.C.'s first disc jockey, Christopher Stone, can be heard on the Light at 9.30 p.m.

● Bernard Levin stars in another "Mike And Women" show on B.B.C. TV at 7.30 p.m.

"Bulletin" Crossword No. 456



Across

[clues illegible]

Down

[clues illegible]

SOLUTION TO CROSSWORD No. 455

Across—1, County; 5, Scared; 8, Gore; 9, Spar save; 11, Pins; 12, Tangent; 13, Lent; 15, Short; 19, Star bar; 21, Agree; 22, Gunwale; 23, Lie; 24, Sands.

Down—1, Cigarette; 2, Rescue; 3, Cremation; 4, Scrap; 5, Sweet; 6, Spar; 7, Dentist; 11, Pedigree; 14, Attack; 17, Lunch; 18, Jacket; 20, Glad.

RACE CHIEF'S VISIT

Lieut.-Colonel Eustace Edmonstone-Charteris, M.C., Lord Murray, of Edinburgh, will attend a special meeting sponsored by the Aberdeen Motor Club in Aberdeen next Thursday night, to form a branch of the new Eustace Edmonstone Association to support Scotland's famous car racing team.

Two Soviet warships on way to Syria

TWO Soviet warships are on their way to make a "friendship call" on Syria at the invitation of the government, Moscow Radio reported last night.

The kreuzer, and the cruiser Zhdanov and the destroyer Svobodny are steaming through the eastern Mediterranean for the Syrian port of Latakia.

They are under the command of Vice-Admiral Katrov, Deputy Commander of the Soviet Baltic Fleet.

Moscow gave no further indication of the purpose of the warships' visit to Syria, whose government has steered the West by moving around closer links with the Communists.

The Soviet move appeared to be a show of strength countering the U.S. Sixth Fleet's foray into the eastern Mediterranean after the Syria crisis erupted last month. The Sixth Fleet sailed about at heightening tension.

Rope trick frees a prisoner

A prisoner escaped from Wormwood Scrubs Prison, London, last night, by clambering up a rope flung over a wall by confederates.

The prisoner, Charles Arthur Dennis Parsons, serving seven years for robbery with violence, was working in the jail yard when the rope came snaking over the wall.

It had been tied to a tree outside the prison.

Parsons ran to the rope, pulled himself up hand over hand, and vanished over the top.

His accomplices are believed to have had a car waiting for a short getaway.

Parsons (24) was sentenced last February for his part in the £12,000 American Express robbery in Reading, Middlesex.

His home is in Union Grove, Lambeth, London.

● Showgirl Pat Carter and magician Gwyn Rees.

SHOWGIRL WILL WED MR GNOME

TWENTY-one-year-old showgirl Pat Carter, who is appearing in a Harrogate (North Devon) fair, announced yesterday that she plans to marry Mr. Gio. Gwyn Rees, a magician, who is also appearing at the fair.

Mr Rees, who is 43, is two feet shorter than his fiancee. In September, 1955, Bristol magistrates refused permission to Miss Carter to marry Rees, known professionally as Barry Gnome.

Miss Carter said yesterday: "Surely people can see now we are serious about this. We have waited two years and are getting married as soon as it is possible—probably when we have arranged pantomime bookings this winter."

Mother objected

Objection to Miss Carter's proposed marriage in 1955 was made by her mother, Mrs Hanna Carter, Ambleside Avenue, Southmead, Bristol.

Since then Miss Carter's younger sister, Bonnie, has joined her in an act that many impersonate Mr Rees acts as "Barker" and does great voices.

MAN ON BUS SAW BLONDE'S BODY IN FLOWER BED

A man travelling to work on the top deck of a Leicester bus yesterday saw the body of a woman lying huddled in a flower bed—and another murder hunt began.

The woman — who had been strangled—was later named as Mrs. Irene Barton, aged about 35. She was an attractive blonde and mother of two children.

Her parents live at Oxford Street, Leicester, about a mile's walk from the recreation ground in Watson Road, where the body was found.

Death took place about midnight on Tuesday night—and it was believed she was killed in a house within 100yd. of the park.

Her gang-type high heeled shoes were found in a street nearby.

Special investigation officers of the U.S. Air Force were called in and a number of coloured men were interviewed.

Dog found hand

Fifty policemen with dogs searched woodland at Hothorpe Park, Hertfordshire, yesterday, after the discovery of a man's right hand.

The hand was found when Mrs Jean Carter, a piano teacher of The Bungalow, Grove Green, took her dog for a walk.

It was gone but with an object in its mouth and would not drop it.

Her husband took the object to the police and a search began.

Police believe that the hand must have been severed some weeks ago.

Marines seize the 'phones

Telephone and telegraph workers in Argentina seized control of the telephone offices of 40 union leaders were arrested, and Marines with bayonets took over the communication centres.

The workers have been going slow for two weeks demanding higher wages.

Similar troops were reported to operate the communications services.

NEW C.-IN-C. GIBRALTAR

General Sir Charles Keightley has been appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Gibraltar.

MRS CASSIDY

One of the triplets has died

ONE of the triplet daughters born at Dundee Royal Infirmary to 25-year-old Mrs Charlotte Cassidy, wife of farm worker Thomas Cassidy, Priestly Cottage, Carnoustie, died yesterday.

The babies, Sylvia, Annie, and Elizabeth, were two months premature and were the first to be weighed at birth. Sylvia died about 25 hours after birth.

Mrs Cassidy, who was "feeling fine" yesterday, told a reporter that she was not really surprised when told one might have triplets.

Her mother's sister, Mrs Jean Millar of Forfar, had twins and triplets.

Two rooms

The Cassidys who live in a two-room cottage have two other children, Margaret (3) and Bella (2) months old.

Another child lost his life in an accident at Newgale about two years ago.

Satchmo attacks Ike

Continued from Page One

what's wrong with my country, what am I supposed to say?"

He said if he ever does go through with his proposed trip to Russia, "I'll do it on my own."

At Newport, Rhode Island, President Eisenhower, yesterday agreed to meet Mr Adam Clayton Powell, a Negro Democrat member of the U.S. House of Representatives to discuss school integration problems generally.

No date or place has been set yet but the warring Mr Powell left the Democratic Party in the Presidential election in 1956 to support Eisenhower for re-election.

Crowds cheer Princess

Continued from Page Four

Morning newspapers portrayed the Princess.

After the race, the Princess appeared at a window to wave to the cheering crowd.

She is expected to arrive in Balmoral some time today.

The Princess reached her host's home, Allangrange, Black Isle, about 2 a.m. yesterday after the first halt and rest about noon.

King Haakon has high fever

A medical bulletin issued in Oslo yesterday said that the condition of King Haakon of Norway is causing anxiety. The King is 85.

The bulletin says that the King is suffering from a disturbance in the blood circulation in his right leg. During the past two weeks he has been suffering from a high fever.

PASSER-BY CHASED WINDOW SMASHER

A man who smashed the windows of a shop at 1231 Govan Road, Glasgow, late night, was chased by a passer-by, who called the police. A man was later arrested.

SKEEZY WEEZY
"This is quite thrilling," says Skeezy trying to hold down all the springs at once. "I've tried the chair you sit on, it means hard pill."
"I hear" says our cat "You pass the springs down, Skeezy, so I'll wait the shell here over there. There's visitor—you're doctor first."
"I'm beginnin' me think I should has been an upholsterer instead o' a professorin' cook," joins Goody proudly as the hammers sang.
"Wow, that's it hammered! Eh, but nicely on, it's my bowgel Mrs. Skeezy, what did you think to do—some wrong? Sooey—whoa are ye?"

"Here then the Metropole Parade is over here might to be come jumps in the quite more," says Mr Nibbler, "We might even get fancy clothes".
"I just came in to tell you your motorbike was so quiet I simply had to come and find out what you were doing."
"We were planning," says Mr Nibbler, "That I shall go-in me and not disturb you," says Bumble, "I was by, quite the quietest mouse!"
"I shall learn the door and keep harsh out," says Mrs Nibbler, "you shall!" says Mr Nibbler. "She will pay in and out of our dreams."

HAILSHAM SHAKES UP THE TORIES

From Page One

picture of British public life as something inherently honourable."

This is the creed he hopes is exported to Africa through the country—"I've got a distrust now at Westminster."

But all this will be subject to his duties in the Government. "I am a Cabinet Minister, and my first duty is to the Crown, and to the people."

On stay-at-home Tories—"If you stay at home to punish the leadership, you succeed in punishing only yourself . . . I am interested in criticisms and reservations, but not when coupled with threats and blackmail."

In short, Lord Hailsham finds the spiritual health of the Tory Party is more important than the efficiency of its propaganda machine.

Printed by George Gunson & Company Limited (P.O. Box No. 42), and Published at 58 Buchanan Street, Glasgow, C.1. Thursday, 19, 1957.

LATEST NEWS